COUNCIL HEARS REPORT ON RELIEF FROM EDMONTON

At the regular meeting of the town council on Monday night, Councillor Evans reported on his recent mission to Edmonton in behalf of local relief. This report had already been submitted to the unemployed and the local unit of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, and quite a deputation was present on Monday night, anxious to know what action the council would take in the matter.

The report in part was as follows: Mr. Evans explained to the relief commission and other government officials the urgent need of immediate provision being made for the supplying of clothing, to children especially, as well as the need of bedding for winter weather. This matter would be looked into further by the relief commission when they would be in Blaimore, and that pending the visit of the commission the R.C.M.P. would be requested to investigate and deal with any pressing cases.

The relief commission refused Mr. Evan's request for fuel for the unemployed, stating the unemployed had all summer in which to lay in a supply of wood or other fuel from the hillsides.

Instructions will be issued to the R.C.M.P. to investigate all cases where unemployed are to be evicted from their homes for the non-payment of rents, and provision made for any bona fide unemployed likely to be evicted.

Mr. Evans' arguments in favor of paying the unemployed who are receiving direct relief by cash instead of scrip was favorably received by the commission. He stated that much discussion took place over this question by A. McKenzie, chairman of the relief committee; Robert English, deputy minister of municipal affairs; Colonel Saunders and A. A. Buck.

At the conclusion of his report Councillor Evans made the following recommendations:

1. That when the commission is in Blaimore meeting the town council, that a delegation of 12 mothers, of the largest families, be present at the meeting and show the advantages obtainable through having cash to purchase potatoes, other vegetables, butter and eggs, meats and flour from the farmers.

2. That relief cheques be issued to the wife rather than to the husband, so that she would have sole control of the cash, and thereby prevent any abuse of this method of granting relief.

3. That the unemployed of Blaimore be requested to select a strong committee to present complaints and grievances that they may have and make representations and requests in a diplomatic manner, rather than in a manner which would tend to antagonize and make unsympathetic the members of the relief commission.

As stated by Mr. Evans, Mr. Mac-

EX-HEAD OF UNITED CHURCH IS VISITOR

Around three hundred people attended the United church rally in the auditorium of the local church on Tuesday night to hear Dr. E. H. Oliver, principal of St. Andrew's college, Saskatoon, and former moderator of the church. Among those present were noted representatives from Michel, Pincher Creek, Coleman, Hillcrest and Bellevue. A short musical programme was rendered, in which Mrs. Cranston, of Bellevue; Mr. Skinner, of Calgary, and Mrs. C. J. Bundy, of Cowley, took part, with Mr. Albert Christie, of Bellevue; Miss Morrison, of Cowley, and Miss Irene Chappell, of Blaimore, as accompanists. Present on the platform with Dr. Oliver were Revs. Matthews, of Michel; N. M. Whitmore, of Pincher Creek; John Wood, of Bellevue; Roy Taylor, of Coleman, and the pastor, Rev. A. E. Larke, who introduced the guest speaker of the evening following devotional exercises.

Dr. Oliver spoke at length on the work of the Church throughout the world, basing his remarks on the subject "Building a Highway to New Day," and those who were unable to attend missed hearing one of the ablest discourses given here for many a day.

At the conclusion, the audience extended their appreciation of Dr. Oliver's visit.

During Dr. Oliver's stay here, he was guest of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Larke. Dr. Oliver left on Wednesday for other points in Alberta.

NINTH ANNUAL C. N. P. MUSICAL FESTIVAL

On Thursday morning of next week, the ninth annual Crows' Nest Pass Musical Festival will open at the Columbus hall in Blaimore, with assurance of being the largest and most successful yet held.

The success is in receipt of upwards of 300 entries, which are compiled in the elaborate programme just being issued. Entries have come from all points between Macleod and Cranbrook, from the latter city alone upwards of 150 promising to take a part in the three-day programme.

It is now quite certain that a special train will be run from Cranbrook and Kimberley to Blaimore for Saturday, the 28th, bringing, besides competitors, in all about three hundred people from that point.

Musical lovers throughout the entire district are looking forward to enjoying three days of a real musical treat.

Mrs. Victoria Rippon passed away at Coleman on Saturday night, at the age of thirty-nine years. She is survived by her husband and four children.

Mr. R. English, expected to visit Blaimore this week and consider matters locally.

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, etc., the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "tingling" relief of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN'S quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

Does Not Harm the Heart

A Time For Thought

Winter approaches and the year progresses steadily to its close. The major activities of this great western agricultural land are rapidly being completed for another season. The hours of daylight are becoming fewer, the days shorter, and the evenings and hours of darkness longer. As Nature thus works out its annual changes, man, too, alters the routine of his life. As his activities on the land become lighter, he rises later in the morning and retires to rest later in the evening. And he employs those evening hours in ways not possible to him when physically tired out from a long day's labor in the fields.

In the late Fall and Winter months thousands of people in Western Canada devote themselves to reading, to study, to forms of recreation, to community gatherings, which are not possible during the strenuous months of plowing, seeding, harvesting and threshing. The Fall and Winter becomes the time for self-improvement, for checking up of oneself, for planning for the future.

Possibly, because of the very nature of the times through which the world is now passing, with a multitude of, as yet, unsolved problems; because of difficulties to be overcome which are taxing the resourcefulness and testing the courage of everybody; because of the danger of feelings of despair, of hopelessness and faith, because of such a world condition it is probable that people will do even more thinking and study than in times past.

Unquestionably people are thinking, perhaps as they never thought before. Admittedly, there is much loose thinking, reckless thinking, by some. There are others who, perhaps, imagine they are doing some real thinking when, in reality, they are only thinking of themselves. There are others adopting the thinking of others. But many others, probably the vast majority of people, are thinking for themselves, thinking seriously, and earnestly studying, and will continue to do so in even more earnest, serious fashion during the next few months.

Few investments, says one writer, are so sure and profitable as the effort to equip oneself in the four fundamental accomplishments:

1. How to think accurately and comprehensively.
2. How to express thought in talking and writing.
3. How to work skillfully with the hands.
4. How to take one's place among men.

The next four, or five months will provide a golden opportunity for many of us to make such investments. As we read a newspaper, magazine or book, and obtain entertainment therefrom, the opportunity is likewise ours to think out for ourselves the wisdom or foolishness of the thought expressed or ideas advanced by the writer for the time being engaging our attention. It is an opportunity to test the accuracy and comprehensiveness of our own thinking.

Or, as we listen to some speaker over the radio, to an eminent clergyman, a man well known in public life, an outstanding figure in the financial or industrial world, a great scientist, inventor, traveller, author, or social worker, and as we glean information, and hear definite opinions advanced, we, of course, advance our knowledge and are entertained. But we will have missed a real opportunity for self-advancement if, at the same time, we fail to ponder over and analyze what we hear, and bring our own thinking apparatus into full play, and apply the test of our own serious, concentrated thought, to the views expressed and the ideas advanced.

It is well to be a good listener, a consistent reader, but it is better to be a student. Let us absorb from others; in that way information is gained and knowledge advanced. But let us be something more than a sponge which merely absorbs. Let us train ourselves to sift the true from the false; the good from the evil; that which is strong from that which is weak; selecting that which is constructive from that which is purely destructive.

There is much to be learned, and destructive criticism is about the easiest thing in which any person can indulge. But there is also much to commend and applaud. War with all its horrors and suffering is to be condemned—condemned as the peoples of the world have not yet seen fit to condemn it—but even in the days of war there was nevertheless developed attributes of character of the finest and noblest type. The present economic depression is a world tragedy. Its evils must be mitigated, and a repetition of it prevented as far as it is humanly possible to prevent something over which man alone has not complete control. But out of the depression there is slowly, but surely, arising a greater conception of man's relations, duties and responsibilities toward his fellow man.

Now is a better way of life for every individual, for every community and nation, for the world. It will be brought about, and the new era ushered in, not by some tremendous upheaval, but by a rapid overthrow of what now is and the equally rapid substitution of something else, not by the efforts of any one man, or party, or nation, but by the individual efforts of all combining to one great common end. The man or woman who does his or her own thinking, deep, serious thinking, and who applies their own God-given powers and energies to the particular task which confronts them, will be the real creators of, and leaders in, the new era that is dawning.

Now is the time for every person to fit himself or herself for the great work now at hand and ahead.

London's New Lighting Scheme

Famous Buildings Will Be Flood-lighted On Certain Occasions

Canadian visitors to London this winter will find town a much less gloomy place than they had been led to expect, states Douglas Webster, London Correspondent of the Regina Leader-Post. A lighting scheme has been planned and will be carried out in the winter which will rid London of its reputation of a city of dark and gloomy places.

Famous buildings such as the clock tower of the Houses of Parliament, the National Gallery, Westminster Abbey, and St. Paul's Cathedral will be wired for floodlighting and illuminated at certain times.

The London society has the plan in hand. Its intention is to floodlight certain buildings frequently and especially on such days as have national significance. The cost will be borne privately.

The project was first mooted by the Incorporated Association of Architects and Surveyors some three years ago. Nothing came of it then. Today the London Society has the matter well in hand and it is hoped that the first display of floodlighting under the society's auspices will coincide with the British Industries fair which takes place early in 1934.

Although this floodlighting is designed to boost the Industries Fair the scheme will not stop there. The Royal Society intends to make it a permanent feature of the London season.

DEPRESSED BY ACUTE ACIDITY

There can surely be no doubt about the effectiveness of a remedy for acidity that can give such permanent relief as in this woman's case.

I suffered for many years from acidity in various forms," she writes. "At last it became so acute that every morning I woke with a gnawing pain and a great depression of spirits. I tried Kruschen Salts, and the effect was magical. The pain subsided and the depression lifted like a cloud. I have taken the daily dose of Kruschen ever since. That was about five years ago, and the Kruschen has not lost its effect."—(Miss) E.M.H.

Kruschen is so effective with acidity because it neutralizes acids, and all the torment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination to perfect regular action, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid ever accumulating again. After that you'll experience no more misery after meals.

New Inheritance Law

Jews Cannot Inherit, Sell, Or Divide Farms In Germany

Germany's small farmers became a "privileged" class when Chancellor Hitler signed a revolutionary law inheritance law whereby Jews are not permitted to sell or divide lands among heirs. The law defined an "inheritable" farm as a tract including arable and forest land not exceeding 310 acres and possessed by a capable farmer. The law says: "The farmer shall henceforth be called a peasant. A peasant must only be a German citizen of German or kindred blood and honorable."

Foresee Maritime Towns Moored in Atlantic

Forerunner Of Many Others, Likely To Rise In North Sea

A vast uncharted island, forerunner of many others which will give to the world a new race of island dwellers, is said by a Berlin correspondent likely to rise shortly in the North Sea. A time in the near future has been visualized when there will be maritime towns moored in the middle of the Atlantic and complete with luxury hotels and landing grounds for aircraft. Fast airplane services will be begun from the mainland and in between the island communities, aerodromes, with powerful wireless stations, will be built. Then will come the health seekers. Week-enders will discover this new world on their doorstep. The islands will have their trees, flowers and gardens. The sea will be harnessed to provide electricity, and the wants of the communities will be supplied by cargo carrying aircraft from the mainland.

More Work Under N.R.A.

Expect One Million Or More Have Been Re-Employed

Possibility that the count now being plotted in the United States by the N.R.A. may show re-employment of 1,000,000 or more persons in excess of present estimates is being held out by statisticians to Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

They have calculated that the actual count of noses by direct solicitation will reach tens of thousands of employers and to not report regularly through ordinary channels and may show that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 persons have found work since the low mark of last winter. The present accepted figures, based largely upon reports to the labor department by industry and upon trade union estimates, run to approximately 2,500,000.

Japan's Activities In Pacific

Writer Claims Japan Intends To Put U.S. Out Of The Picture

"Japan is now definitely and methodically preparing to put the United States out of the west Pacific picture by force, as she did Russia in 1904," said Upton Close, author and lecturer, who passed through Victoria after a trip to Japan and Hawaii.

"When President Roosevelt authorized resumption of building of the United States navy, the Japanese gave up hope of bluffing and persuading the people of the U.S. to withdraw from the Pacific," he said. "Japan now means business."

The author said he was banned from Manchukuo because of his criticism of Japanese activities in that state.

"The Japanese people have been propagandized to the point where they will now not permit any ruling clique to abandon the campaign for domination of China and the Pacific," he asserted. It was high time the people of North America ceased to be deluded by Japanese Government officials who declared war with the U.S. was "unthinkable."

Aurora Not Connected With Weather Changes

Opinion Of Leader Of British Polar Year Party

The aurora borealis, so far as known, has no connection with weather changes, Dr. J. M. Stagg, leader of the British polar year party, told interviewers at Winnipeg. Many people have held the belief a display of aurora meant a change in weather. If it appeared during warm weather, they held, lower temperatures would be recorded within a 24-hour period, and its appearance during cold weather would mean the coming of warmer days.

Dr. Stagg's study in the far north, at Fort Rae, North West Territories, failed to confirm this belief. He did find, however, the aurora disrupts weather and graph lines, and had a direct effect on short wave radio communications.

Pictures Made Of Cloth

Work Of Finnish Artist Resembles New Type Of Oil Painting

Pictures made of pieces of cloth chosen for their colors and stuck to a mat surface are on exhibit in Montreal, the work of a Finnish artist, Elia Meri-Kallio. There are landscapes, flower pictures and even a few figure subjects, in which scraps of various effects have been used to produce the effect of flesh painting. Silk, muslin and all kinds of textiles are used and a great deal of patience and skill must have been required in working them into pictures to gain some striking effects which are quite surprisingly like many of the new types of oil painting.

A Very Old Ailment

Mastodons Suffered From Toothache

Millions of Years Ago Toothaches did not originate with the advent of man, it is revealed in a visit to the dental exhibits at "A Century of Progress," in Chicago.

More than a million years ago exhibits reveal the mastodons, bison, and sabre-toothed tigers were suffering from aching molars. "Pyorrhea in a camel a million years ago," reads the sign above one display in the exhibit located in the Hall of Science. Mastodons is the jaw bone of an early ancestor of our present-day camel.

SAYS CANADA TO GAIN FROM WHEAT PACT

Edmonton, Alberta.—The wheat agreement signed in London, England, last summer, was the first world effort to co-ordinate production to demand. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett told a mass meeting here, "and Canada stands to gain most from it." For the third time Mr. Bennett faced a capacity audience of Edmonton people and received an attentive hearing as he told of the developments affecting Canada since his government took office.

Referring again to the question of a central bank for Canada, Mr. Bennett said that the resolution signed unanimously at the world economic conference on the subject of currency stabilization and exchange, contemplated the establishment of central banks in all "developed" countries.

"To clear up any confusion that may exist," Mr. Bennett continued, "I may point out that that resolution meant, of course, that Canada should have a central bank."

"What is still king among the factors contributing to the prosperity of the world," the Prime Minister continued, "and unless the husbandman is producing this commodity at a profit, there can be no real prosperity."

Alcatraz Island was selected for the purpose. Its rocky shores rise precipitously from San Francisco Bay.

Privy Council Judicial Committee Finds Fuel Oil Tax Valid

London, Eng.—Nearly $400,000 in revenues is restored to the province of British Columbia by a judgment of the judicial committee of the privy council which finds British Columbia's Fuel Oil Tax Act of 1930 is valid. The tax is half-a-cent a gallon. The act, in their lordships' opinion, is direct taxation within the meaning of section 92 of the British North America Act, and therefore intra vires.

Favors Currency Inflation

Calgary, Alberta.—Currency inflation to raise $100,000,000 for erecting public buildings and other public works, was urged by Hon. Charles Stewart, Edmonton Liberal member in the House of Commons, in an address here to the Young Liberal Club. Mr. Stewart believed if this step was taken relief camps would be unnecessary.

Only Three Needed

Washington.—Repeal of prohibition in the United States swept into its final stage with every indication that the 18th amendment will be voted out of the constitution on Nov. 7. On that day six states will ballot on repeal. Approval by only three is needed to cancel the prohibition amendment.

Cancer Cases Cured

Chicago.—Surgeons reported 12,746 cases of cancer have been cured in the last three years. Thirty-one specialists reported this progress in a symposium entitled "Cancer is Curable," sponsored by the American College of Surgeons.

Better Understanding

U.S. Minister To Canada Speaks At Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont.—I want no green baize cloth on our council tables and no jockeying for petty advantage," Hon. W. D. Robbins, United States minister to Canada, told the eighth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at the annual banquet of that body here. Mr. Robbins was one of the guest speakers, together with Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

The United States envoy assured his hearers he would do everything in his power to bring about complete understandings between Canada and the United States.

J. H. Woods, of Calgary, a past president of the chamber, voiced the appreciation of the gathering for the address.

The convention devoted several hours to an open discussion of ways and means by which government expenditures might be curtailed.

Three suggestions emerged from the discussion. One was that the national committee appointed last year at Halifax be allowed to continue its campaign of education for government economy.

Another was designed to establish a committee which would work with these various administrations for the purpose of eliminating duplication in their respective spheres, while a third was a straight resolution looking to the appointment of a small committee whose duty would be to prosecute a campaign for the lowering of government expenditures.

Railway Wage Dispute

Believed Press Comment Not In Interest Of Either Side

Ottawa, Que.—The interest of both sides would best be served if negotiations continued in camera and if no attempt was made by the press to gauge the tenor of the meetings, it was stated at the conclusion of recent negotiations between the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and the railroad running trades.

As far as could be learned the position is stationary, both the men and their employers persisting in their respective opinions. The men claim an additional 10 per cent wage but is unjustified, the companies said it is made necessary by adverse economic conditions affecting the roads.

While these negotiations were proceeding, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks made the submission to a board of conciliation in rebuttal to the case submitted some time ago by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Rail Workers Warned

Must Not Wreck Machinery Of Industrial Disputes Act

Montreal, Que.—Warning that railway employees should take no action to wreck the machinery of the Industrial Disputes Act was given to members of the Brotherhood of Railroad and Steamship Clerks by Lynn B. Spencer, K.C., chairman of a board of conciliation appointed to hear a dispute between the brotherhood and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The chairman's warning came after he had granted the request of Frank Hall, vice-president of the brotherhood, for postponement of the hearing. Negotiations between the running trades and the two Canadian roads made the postponement necessary, argued Mr. Hall.

More Cold Storage Foods

Ottawa, Ont.—With the exception of eggs, pork, fish and apples, all food commodities in cold storage on Oct. 1 showed an increase over the corresponding period last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics announces.

DEFINITE SIGNS OF ECONOMIC RECOVERY NOTED

Ottawa, Ont.—Reduced taxation and sound financial policies are the only means of lightening Canada's present burden and of bringing about an era of balanced budgets, J. MacLeod Clarke, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, told the eighth annual convention of that organization. His report noted with satisfaction that federal and provincial budgets had been reduced in the current fiscal year by some $50,000,000.

The secretary reiterated the Chamber's willingness to assist the government in the selection of a personnel for a national committee along the lines of the May committee in the United Kingdom to bring about necessary reductions in governmental expenditures.

With regard to unemployment insurance, the recommendation was that the Chamber take no further action in the matter "other than to watch carefully any legislation which may be proposed to this end with a view to assisting in the drafting of laws which will be sane and sensible."

Fire losses were reduced in 1932 from 1931 and a helpful sign was that in the last year 88 per cent of the losses were covered by insurance, an increase of eight per cent over the previous two years.

Thirty-five boards or chambers took part last year in the contests to prevent fire losses held by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. For cities over 50,000, Toronto won the silver shield. Kenora, Ont., was winner for cities under 15,000, with Prince Albert, Sask., second.

Increasing interest was also shown in the report submitted to the convention for the health and safety contest. Winnipeg won the class one for cities of over 50,000 population and Vancouver second.

Slow return to normal economic conditions is being reflected in the greater confidence and more hopeful outlook of the Canadian people, said A. O. Dawson, executive chairman of the chamber.

It was a "definite improvement" which has been the main basis sustaining the report, said Mr. Dawson, possibly the most important feature of the recovery being the narrowing gap between Canadian farm products and the prices of manufactured goods.

Manufacturing activity has been quickened. Pig iron production made some progress during the second quarter of the year, while producers of automobiles, textiles and boots and shoes have been "extremely active" and more favorable markets are now looming in the United States and in the United Kingdom for our new products and lumber respectively.

The unemployment situation had been bettered to the extent of 200,000 formerly idle men finding employment since April.

Evidence of improving foreign trade was seen by Mr. Dawson in the fact Canada had recovered fifth place among the world's exporters.

Mr. Dawson listed "some of the problems that still press us," as follows: Taxation weighing heavily on business, an unsatisfactory railway situation, "farmers' dissatisfaction with meagre returns for long hours and hard work, unsatisfactory wages to industrial workers "which must surely lead to trouble," and curtailment of church, hospital, educational and charitable activities as a result of curtailed revenue.

The importance of conditions in foreign lands should not be overlooked, continued Mr. Dawson. Definite advancement on the road to normalcy was evident in the United Kingdom and the international co-operation brought to bear recently toward the solution of the wheat problem had aroused hope that "international agreement may be extended to other natural commodities in the near future."

Huge Air Liner Wrecked

Caught Fire From Explosion And Seven Burned To Death

Chesterton, Ind.—The scattered bits of a giant twin-motor transport plane—one of its massive wheels hung suspended from a tree—was that remained of a New York to Chicago ship of the United Air Lines that carried its seven occupants to a flaming death.

Just what happened when the all-metal ship with a top speed of more than three miles a minute crashed to earth in flames about five miles south-east of here, probably never will be known, but witnesses said they heard a terrific explosion.

Five of the bodies were recovered, but none was taken out alive as the heat of the flames kept back farmers who flocked to the scene.

Due to the complete break-up of the plane and the wide area over which the wreckage was strewn any attempt to discover the cause of the tragedy probably will be difficult, but officials of United Air Lines said they were launching an immediate and thorough investigation.

Visible Wheat Supply

Heavy Increase Shown Over This Date Last Year

Ottawa, Ont.—Canadian elevators bulged with 235,170,472 bushels of wheat on October 6, it was reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This was an increase of 7,655,939 bushels from the previous week. A year ago, the visible supply was 210,932,869 bushels.

Canadian wheat stored in the United States consisted of 6,541,114 bushels, compared with 11,028,622 bushels a year ago. Wheat in transit on the Great Lakes consisted of 5,290,618 bushels, compared with 6,082,030 bushels last year.

United States wheat in Canada was shown as 2,991,168 bushels, compared with 8,318,062 bushels last year.

Landslide Buries Nineteen

Tegucigalpa, Honduras.—Official reports from a village 30 miles east of here said 19 persons were buried alive in a landslide which struck the village of Apolopi. The reports said a portion of a hill descended upon the village. Many houses were destroyed. In the same district the Tholoma river flooded houses and plantations, drowning some people and numerous cattle.

"PLANES VERSUS WARSHIPS—SCENE FROM THE 'WAR ZONE'"

This impressive photograph was taken from an aeroplane above the clouds, looking down on an incident in the British aerial-naval manoeuvres that took place recently off the Fifth of Forth. The Royal Air Force attacked the British Navy and interesting "battles" resulted. Looking through the clouds a warship can be seen, while hidden from it by clouds hovers a bombing squadron.

War In The Air

British Flying Boat Armed With Pellets, Heavy Gun

Felstead, Eng.—The air ministry's latest harbored the first service aircraft in the world to be armed with a heavy gun firing high explosive shells.

First of four flying boats being built at Felstead, Yorkshire, for the Royal Air Force, the machine was flown here on its maiden flight. In the war and later years aeroplanes were unable to carry anything heavier than a machine-gun, although heavy bombs, of course, have been standard equipment on bombers for many years.

The new machine's armament includes a gun capable of firing 1½-pound shells, and three machine-guns, the whole installed on what is virtually a 17-ton flying gun platform travelling at 132 miles an hour.

The long-standing problem surmounted by the builders of the new aircraft was that of providing for the result upon an aeroplane of the heavy gun. Intensive trials will now be given the craft, after which, with the other of the quartette, it is expected to form a squadron to be stationed at Malta.

Time Cut By Forty Hours

Kingsford-Smith Made Fast Trip From England To Australia

Wynnam, Australia.—Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith clipped more than 40 hours from the England-Australia flying record when he landed here to the cheers of a mighty throng of wellcomers.

The famous aviator's flight record by Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith was such important news in London that it dwarfed such matters as war debts and disarmament.

News of the Australian's success was wired to Sandringham for the information of the king, who has taken a keen interest in the flight.

SOLID OPPOSITION TO RE-ARMING FOR GERMANY

Geneva, Switzerland.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, confronted with staunch opposition to re-arming from the United Kingdom, the United States and France, was forced into a position of deciding whether to accept transformation of the Reichswehr without immediate possession of war materials.

In a swift moving climax of the day's disarmament developments, the United States joined Great Britain and France in a united position against the increase of German arms.

It was revealed in French circles that the United States representative, Norman H. Davis, told Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour that American opposition to re-arming had been made clear at Washington.

Indications were that slow but steady progress was being made toward a solution of disarmament problems despite difficulties still existing on practical points between France, Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Paul-Boncour was immensely pleased at the American attitude. France has always been opposed to any German re-arming proposal. At a three-power party, Great Britain through its foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, took a decisive stand in the same direction.

Indications continued that adjustment will be made in a spirit of conciliation which will satisfy Germany, cession the British Government is known to oppose allocation of military aeroplanes.

It appeared that the British position against re-arming had become even more rigid than that of the French.

U.S. Recovery Plan

Sir Josiah Stamp, British Economist, Says N.E.A. Not A Success

London, Eng.—Sir Josiah Stamp, the economist, claims that American production had fallen off despite efforts to the N.E.A., especially in the construction field.

He asserted some industries were showing no signs of improvement and that creation of public employment was a definite failure. He expressed the opinion that the N.E.A. was increasing costs but not purchasing power. He added:

"America might succeed in spite of herself because of her youth and vigor."

WOULD OPEN WAY TO TRADE WITH CANADA

Ottawa, Ont.—A business-like and unbiased view should be taken of the trading situation between Canada and the United States, H. H. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told the eighth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

The declining trade between the two countries was regarded by Mr. Harriman as "ominous." It made him wonder if the United States tariff enactments had destroyed trade that would be mutually profitable to both countries. And if similarly the Ottawa agreements with other empire countries had diverted trade into channels "which were not dictated by sound economics."

"The United States Government has already initiated conversations with various governments to determine whether or not there are possibilities for bringing about reciprocal tariff agreements," said Mr. Harriman.

"It has always seemed to me that between two countries such as Canada and the United States, where production costs and other expenses tend to equalize each other, it would be possible to arrive at some formula permitting a reasonable amount of fair competition in both countries of the products of the other."

"In the Ottawa agreements, as between Canada and the United Kingdom, you have indication of a formula that would approach a basis of reasonable competition, between British and Canadian goods. Would it not be a fair starting point in any reciprocal agreements between Canada and the United States to work out a formula whereby the rates of duty between the two countries would tend to be only those necessary to assure a reasonable degree of protection to the home industry?"

Amend Irish Constitution

Steps Taken Towards Establishment Of A Republic

Dublin, Ireland.—Without a division and with very little debate, the dail eireann passed the final stages of three bills amending the constitution by steps described by opponents as preliminaries to the establishment of a republic.

These bills transfer from the governor-general to the executive council the function of recommending monetary appropriations; seek to abolish the right of the governor-general to withhold assent from any bills passed by the legislature; and abolish the right of appeal to the privy council.

The measures now go to the senate, where there is an anti-government majority. By declining to act, the senate can hold them up for 18 months, after which they would become law.

Moving Charges Paid

Farmers From Dried Out Areas Assisted In Trek North

Saskatoon, Sask.—Aiding in the trek of dried-out district farmers to the west coast, the province's Saskatchewan government has passed an order-in-council providing for 100 per cent assistance in the transportation of stock, feed and effects. Freight costs in toto are being borne by the provincial and federal governments and the railway companies.

Such provision already has taken effect in Alberta. Both provinces now provide the same measure of assistance.

This news was announced Thursday by Hon. W. C. Buckle, provincial minister of agriculture, who addressed the convention of the Saskatchewan Liberal-Conservative Association.

Had Clause Changed

Geneva, Switzerland.—Germany won a victory on the Jewish question in forcing the League of Nations Assembly to reject a clause in a resolution German delegates felt was aimed directly at their government's treatment of Jews. As adopted, the measure expressed the hope all countries regardless of whether they signed treaties relating to minority groups, should extend treaty benefits to their minorities.

Want To Settle

Calgary, Alberta.—Aetna Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., holders of $100,000 of city of Calgary bonds on which Calgary refused to pay New York exchange upon maturity last January, has made overtures for settlement at current lower exchange rates, it was disclosed by Mayor Andrew Davidson.

Among those demanding relief in Blaimore are noted former blind-pickers, who are objecting to the rate of pay offered them, but who know full well how much to demand for that tablespoonful of liquor.

On a recent visit to Newfoundland, Dr. Oliver was rather surprised to see farmers planting fish. Prior to that time he had an idea that fish grew in the sea. Even college professors can learn something from Newfoundland.

Remembrance Day, November the 11th, is a statutory holiday. Announcement to this effect was made by the state department at Ottawa in response to many inquiries. In a statement, the department explained that only Sundays are compulsory holidays; nevertheless throughout Canada general public recognition is usually given all holidays which are prescribed by the statutes of Canada.

Peter Krill, late of Bellevue, but now carrying on business at East Coulee in the Drumheller district, accompanied by his wife and six children, met with an accident on Thanksgiving Day, when the family auto plunged off the Rosedale ferry into the icy waters of Red Deer River. The car was boarding the ferry to cross, and Krill failed to bring the car to a stop at the guard chains. Beyond a good drizzling, the family escaped practically unhurt.

Dr. J. S. Hynes returned home Wednesday night after a trip to Kensington, Prince Edward Island, to see his aged father, who has now passed the 87th milestone in life. Dr. Hynes tells that once the traveler leaves Montreal eastward signs of depression rapidly diminish and that conditions in the Maritimes are really quite prosperous, leaving only with the impression that the depression was largely a matter of wheat. Talking with various parties on the return journey, he was told that industrial conditions in Ontario and Quebec were showing tangible signs of improvement and that the reports of labor disturbances at Stratford had greatly magnified the actualities.—Clareholm Local Press.

ONCE again with the arrival of autumn the whole countryside is transformed into a series of gorgeous pictures of vivid coloring. Although the turning of the leaves sounds the death knell of summer, nature is kind and autumn is born in all its brilliancy. All signs point to the advent of the fall season. The call of the hunter echoes from the woods and the staccato crack of the rifle and boom of the shot gun ring out through the clear air. Even the small animals respond to the urge of the season and may be seen scurrying here and there storing up food supplies for the coming winter. The arty appreciation of the natural beauty of fall scenery hurries to take advantage of the season before it closes, for the time is not long till the splendour of the trees in their mantles of gold and crimson will be gone, not to return until another year has passed. The imagination of the poet is stirred by the rapidly changing season and the philosopher becomes inspired with new thought. The northland is calling and Canada with its vast recreational attractions invites the visitor from other lands to participate in the activities of the season. The national and provincial parks are never more beautiful than in the fall of the year when the lavish hand of nature bestows upon them the irresistible charms of autumn.

Vacationists are beginning to realize more each year the advantages of an autumn holiday when the traffic is light upon the highways and the more popular summer resorts are less congested. This is indicated by the large number of requests for road maps and other information directed to the National Parks of Canada of the Department of the Interior, a governmental office at Ottawa, Canada, which supplies information to prospective visitors to that country. While much has been written of autumn in Canada, only by actual experience can one truly appreciate the spirit of the season; words are but empty and cannot adequately describe the thrill of its magic spell.

CURRENT COMMENT

We are not for a moment presuming that any one individual or any group of individuals set out to enslave the masses of the people, economically. Most individuals' merely sought to gratify their acquisitiveness and their love of wealth and power. Enslavement was merely the result. The irony of the situation lies in the fact that during all the process of enslavement, those who ultimately suffered most had it within their power to save themselves, but were blind and indifferent to the consequences. The people of course were not responsible for the actions now are paying bitterly for their stupidity. Here are some of the facts compiled by the committee of which G. G. Coote, M.P., was chairman, for submission to the Banking Commission:

That while agriculture is popularly attributed to be one of Canada's chief industries, there is not one instance of an agriculturalist appearing on the board of directors of any of Canada's chartered banks.

That the names of directors in Canada's four major banks also appear in 129 of the largest financial and industrial corporations in Canada.

That while loans to customers of Canadian banks show a reduction of $276,000,000.00 since 1929, the loans to corporations in which bank directors are interested do not show any appreciable reduction.

That in 1929, when times were booming and Canadian banks had hundreds of millions of dollars on "call" at high rates of interest in New York, the War Finance Act was utilized to the extent of $33,000,000.00 to gain advances from the Dominion Treasury by the Canadian chartered banks.

That even now when Canada needs credit in her industries and in agriculture, one of the major banks in Canada has 38 per cent of its investments outside Canada, and some of them in a country now in a very precarious political position.

That Sir Thomas White, one of the members of the present Banking Commission, was paid $20,000 by the Canadian Bankers' Association in 1923 for his services in connection with the revision of the Bank Act.—Clareholm Local Press.

Back from a trip through Western Canada, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, advocates "moderately controlled" and financially supported immigration. Mr. Beatty stated that he was satisfied that the kind of immigration to which he referred constituted a problem demanding serious attention.

FAITH IS ITS OWN REWARD

The Editor, when sitting in the Hotel Vancouver dining room at Rotary luncheon, was placed beside a minister of the gospel, who was engaged in earnest conversation with one of his faithful. Newspaper men are men of little faith, but then all journalists do not come from Bruce county like ourselves. However, along with the conversation which we could not help overhearing, during the crab cocktail to ice cream and French cookies meal.

The minister stated that he never drew any stated salary from his church. All the expenses were paid first, and he just took what was left. Sometimes, the balance was not as high as other years, but his congregation never let him down. He looked prosperous, and stated that he had turned down offers from other congregations, and was quite content.

Just think of such faith in one's fellowmen (not forgetting the ladies). We have seen signs "In God we trust, all others pay cash," or "In God we trust, and we are not going bust—that means you," but for a minister to gamble on the collections during these times of depression is an illustration of sublime faith. Being just an unemotional scribe, we thought that minister missed his calling, as he should be put in charge of Premier Bennett's "N.R.A.," for which we are patiently waiting. Painless dentistry has nothing on this minister's painless extraction method (if getting his annual salary—Drumheller Review.

Many natives of Russia, who are today the very best of Canadian citizens, state that they would prefer Canada today a thousand times over to Russia, and laugh at silly stories being told of that country by individuals who were not permitted to stay inside Russia's borders long enough to sample thirty meals.

More than forty miles of the major road which will link Jasper National and Banff Parks in the Canadian Rockies have been graded, and work is proceeding along the remaining 190 miles necessary to complete the link. The road, when finished, will form one of the great scenic highways of the world, since it is routed through the very heart of the Rockies, much of it through territory that has been practically unknown.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her "something she should know about Peter."

CHAPTER XIII.

"Well," began Gus, exhaling the smoke of his cigarette, noisily, and turning toward Camilla. "You sure do get to know a guy when you live with him. And I'm telling you now that Peter is not good enough for a sweet little kid like you. He has a dozen skirts after him all the time, like the moths around that light over there. Why? Because he kids 'em along and makes each one think she's the berries for him. D'you know how he's paying his way through school? On the money he gets from rich dames like you! Has he touched you for a payment yet?"

"You are despicable," Camilla told him in a deadly calm voice. "I don't believe a word you are saying and I refuse to listen any longer!"

"Oh, yeah?" his laugh was ugly. "I'll bet you are beautiful to look at when you're mad like that. I told you I'm crazy about you and I meant it. If Peter is good enough for you, so am I—" and before Camilla was aware of what was happening, his arms were holding her like a vise and his mouth was seeking hers while she struggled violently to free herself.

From behind them, a doubled hand struck out swiftly against the side of Gus' head and sent him sprawling on the ground. At the same time, another arm grasped Camilla's shoulders and prevented her falling from the force of the blow that separated them.

"Did he hurt you, dear?" Peter was breathing hard, with anger and exertion.

"No, but I hope you have hurt him," she was trembling, too, with anger. "Not because of me but for what he was saying about you."

"I heard enough," Peter said curtly, "which doesn't matter." But he was sorry I am responsible for introducing you to such a bum."

He walked around the bench and stood above Gus, who rolled over then and put his hand tentatively to his bruised jaw. Peter assured himself that his victim was only stunned, stood up and adjusted his own tie and clothes, and took Camilla's arm.

"Shall we go back to the party and forget this unfortunate affair? Glad I came out here to look for you. I missed you and had already lost one dance with you, so I suspected something was wrong." He was trying to dismiss the incident and sound casual, but his voice still shook uncertainly. "I know you wouldn't voluntarily cut the dances you had promised me."

"But, Peter, he said those terrible things about you!" She was still trembling with her own resentment.

and wondered how Peter could dismiss the thing so calmly. "But you don't believe them, darling!" he asked quietly.

"Of course not!" "Then, that's all that matters. You know, the world has so many people in it that there just have to be some like that—ungrateful and jealous and malicious. But time is too precious to waste even thinking about them. From now on, we'll just forget Gus. People like that just hang themselves with their own rope. He can shift for himself, as he did before I took pity on him. At least, that's one load off my mind!"

"Do you mean," Camilla was incredulous, "that you have been keeping Gus—?"

"Most of the time, he shrugged indifferently.

"And he could say that!" she exclaimed with dismay. "Well, this world surprises me a little more every day—the people, I mean."

"Sure, the world is fine. It's the people—regular hodge-podge. Interesting, though," he added thoughtfully. "Every good or bad surprise I have over human nature makes me feel a little bit wiser and more able to cope with it in general. As Thomson said, 'I am a part of all that I have met.'"

"Oh, Peter, you're so fine yourself," she told him with loving admiration, "that you can find some good in everything."

He pressed her hand that was tucked into his arm, as they walked slowly back to the auditorium. "That's because you think so, honey," he told her with characteristic modesty.

The last balloon had escaped cellingward, many of them were deflated and had dropped to the floor which was strewn with confetti, serpentine dangled limply in mid-air, and the orchestra had crooned goodnight.

Peter Was Breathing Hard From Anger And Exertion.

Again, they were waking through the park, arm in arm. It was that witching hour when the young moon rides high and gloriously, when the air is sweetly caressing and the sounds of the night whisper and echo mysteriously like conspirators of romance. The moonlight stretched a silvery path across the lagoon, down which tiny ripples rode gleefully with the breeze. Somewhere, a pair of birds had just finished the building of their nest and twittered sleepily, and an adventurous frog gave a frightened croak and leaped into the water with a thudding splash.

Camilla chuckled softly. "Poor thing! Perhaps he was on his way to see his girl friend and we frightened him so he never will have the courage to try again."

"Too late, anyway, to start out adventuring," Peter laughed. "He should be taking her home, as I am—and wish I didn't have to," he added softly, drawing her closer with the arm that held her.

"You don't wish that more than I do, Peter?"

"Precious! But that's not the worst of it. Lord knows how many more years I'll have to be taking you home and leaving you, forlornly."

"Not years, darling!"

"It will be, unless things happen a lot faster than I have any right to expect."

"But why do things have to happen—before we can have each other?"

"So I'll be able to take care of you, of course. Sometimes," he said heavily, "I'm afraid that never will be."

"Why, you dear, foolish thing, you talk as if I were going to be a burden to you!"

Foot Guards Won Out

Regiment of King George Can Now Ignore Traffic Light

King George of England's proud regiment of foot guards has just won a big peace-time battle without firing a shot.

Maybe the victory will not be chalked up on the regiment's official battle-roll, but all the same the guards are very jubilant, for their conquest means that in future they will not have to obey London's intricate system of traffic signal lights when on the march to the capital.

The first skirmish occurred two years ago when traffic lights were first coming into use on a big scale here, and an impertinent light in Regent St. declaimed one of the regiment's proudest battle-cries.

Guardsmen were up in arms at this affront. Not even Napoleon was able to cut up the guards, they said in effect, and they saw no reason why a little red light should be able to do it without protest.

Then a few weeks later another battalion lost its drum major through another warlike act on the part of a traffic light. The drum major marched on proudly, twirling his ceremonial staff. Imagine his dismay when he discovered he had become a mere unit of one, that the rest of his colleagues had had their advance stemmed by a mere red lens.

The last straw came when the police commissioner announced he approved the erection of 440 traffic lights, crossroads throughout the capital.

Declaring that so many lights would mean that the guards would be confined to barracks forever, the military authorities took the matter to heart. First they were furnished with maps showing how they could avoid routes in which red lights were operating, but this involved gruelling marches.

Then they began by giving 24 hours' notice of their intention to march, which smoothed away many of the difficulties.

Now they have scored a final victory. In future a traffic light will be stationed at every signal light when the guards are out marching, and the officer will have orders to disconnect the signals until the troops have passed.

Never again will His Majesty's guards be cut up.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

OF SMALL THINGS

A little hill can hide the boundless ocean.
A scrap of cloud can shut away the stars.
A creeping doubt can dim long years' devotion,
An hour of sin a whole life's virtue mar.

Who doubts the oak is in the acorn hidden,
Or that today holds keys to days to be,
That far events which wait for us are unhidden,
Arise from choice which binds us sets us free?

Sluce fleeting cause can wreak such dire disaster,
He who is wise holds naught too slight to heed;
Of small things, as of great he will be master,
Expressing truth in his most trivial deed.

An Anti-Bandit Gadget

Invention May Lead To Lower Insurance For Cars

"Cheaper insurance for motor cars is likely to be one result of an anti-bandit gadget invented by ex-Chief Inspector Wensley, of Scotland Yard."

"The device, which is being manufactured in the midlands, consists of a steel-slat shutter bearing in bold letters the word 'Parked.' It pulls down like a blind behind the windshield and automatically becomes locked."

A car thief would have to use strong tools to remove it.

Prominent insurance brokers and companies have decided that motorists using the shutter will be able to secure a reduction of 15 per cent. off the premiums for all private cars and commercial vehicles.

Princess Mary Better

The Princess Royal, the Countess of Harewood, has practically recovered from her recent illness, but she is deterred from undertaking public engagements for another month. She recently inspected Broadcasting House, the new headquarters of the British Broadcasting Corporation, but it was a personal visit and in no way a public ceremony.

Men are becoming ardent patrons of London department store bargain sales.

Little Helps For This Week

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men."—Galatians 6:10.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love, Through constant watching wise, To meet the glad with joyful smiles, And to wipe the weeping eyes. And a heart at leisure with itself, To soothe and sympathize.

—A. L. Waring.

Surely none are so full of cares or so poor in gifts that to them also, waiting patiently and trustfully on God for His daily commands, He will not give direct ministry for him, increasing according to their strength and desire. There is so much to be set right in the world, there are so many to be led and helped, and comforted, that we must continually come in contact with such in our daily life. Let us only take care that by the glance being turned inward or strained onward we do not miss our turn of service, and pass by those to whom we might have been sent on an errand straight from God.—E. Charles.

Look up and not down, look forward and not back, look out and not in, and lend a hand.—Edward E. Hale.

One Of Queerest Trades

Professional Writer Of Speeches Has Office In London's Famous Strand

Entitled to a high place on the membership list of the club of queer trades is surely the professional writer of speeches who occupies a well-lighted office in London's famous Strand. His enterprise and originality have at all events brought him success, for his queer ideas were first put into practice, a few years ago, he has written hundreds of speeches on the most diverse subjects. Titled and professional folks of all sorts apply to him. For the most part, however, his clients' requirements are of a more ordinary nature, and consist of demands for after-dinner speeches, and addresses for bazaars, presentations and similar functions. Then the writing of political speeches at times also forms a considerable part of the humble speech-writer's activities; and on many occasions he has been called upon to write both "for" and "against" the same party and subject.

New Kind Of Sky-Writing

Partially Frozen Smoke Makes Messages Legible For Longer Period

Successful tests of messages in smoke frozen on the face of the sky have been made in England and it is believed that they soon will be a familiar feature of daily life. The airplanes producing these messages work at a height of 20,000 feet so that the pilots have to wear electrically heated suits. The intense cold at this altitude partially freezes the smoke as it comes in contact with the air, and this makes the messages legible for a longer period than usual. Also at 20,000 feet atmospheric disturbances are less. Night sky-writing by means of a new searchlight projector throws colored patterns on the clouds.

Queer Idea For Holiday

Young Englishman Crossed Ten Deserts In Lone Motor Trip

Ideas for holidays vary. Nicholas Broom's tastes were expressed in a lone motor trip through India, Asia, North Africa and Europe, crossing ten deserts on the way, with only a thermos flask of water in his car. He is a young mines manager on leave. He has just reached London, England, and his speedometer registers a journey of 11,568 miles. He claims that he has made the first solo car journey ever attempted over this route.

Drive Against Tipping

"Down with tipping" is the slogan of a new organization of artists, writers and publishers in Paris. It is the start of a campaign to enforce the abolition of tips under all circumstances, since to replace them by salaries paid by the employer or by percentages on the money collected by the employees.

Pigeon Sought First Aid
